Castles

A castle was a type of home that was built to protect the people inside. It usually had very high walls with towers built in to defend an attack. People who owned castles were usually very rich. They included kings, queens, lords, ladies and knights. It took a lot of people to run a castle, so there were usually lots of servants and soldiers that could be found in a castle.

Charles II & Charles III

Charles II was King of England, Ireland and Scotland in the 1600s. He was famously the King during the Great Fire of London in 1666.

Charles III is the current King of the United Kingdom. He became King in 2022 when he was 73 years old.

Science

Burrowing Animals

Animals such as moles, rabbits, worms, ants and badgers are burrowing animals. They use different parts of their body to dig tunnels. Burrowing animals spend all or most of their time in their tunnels.
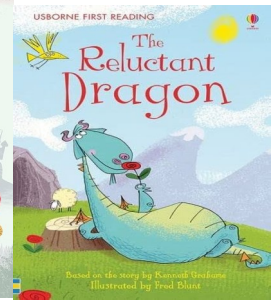

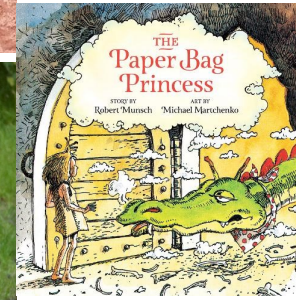

Badgers

Badgers have very strong legs and powerful claws for digging tunnels. They have a strong sense of smell and a cone-shaped nose to push their way through the soil.
